Oxford House™

Oxford Houses are self-supporting, democratically run homes that provide a sober, supportive, and independent living environment for people recovering from substance use disorders.

They are based on the "Oxford House Model", a community-based approach to addiction recovery. Oxford House, Inc. is a publicly supported, non-profit 501(c)3 corporation that connects all Oxford Houses and allocates resources to help duplicate the Oxford House concept where needed. As of January 2024, there were roughly 3,700 Oxford Houses in the United States and other countries.

Donald Weatherwax, Outreach Coordinator

"I moved into Oxford House in October of 2022, and for the first time in a long time, I found a place to call home. Shortly after I was offered the opportunity to work for the very organization that had provided me a home. I strive not only to be an example that it's never too late to change but also to provide other men and women with the same opportunity that was given to me, a place called home."

“ Together, we turn obstacles into solutions, ensuring every individual’s journey to stability is as smooth as possible.”

COLLABORATIVE TRIUMPH

After being successfully housed through the efforts of Homeless Outreach and our Community Housing systems, John faced a new set of challenges. His refrigerator, essential for daily living, was broken, leaving him with perishable food and a growing sense of urgency. Despite multiple requests to his landlord, the necessary repairs weren’t being made, putting John’s housing stability at risk as CMHA (Cincinnati Metropolitan Housing) threatened eviction over the unit's inspection failure.

Jamie Ayer, John’s GCB case manager, recognized the gravity of the situation and began advocating vigorously on his behalf. When CMHA remained unyielding, Jamie decided to leverage the power of community partnerships. She reached out to Erica from Hopeline, who remembered Luis from The Bluffs, known for his assistance with appliance-related issues. Luis immediately stepped in, demonstrating the strength of collaborative problem-solving. He quickly arranged for a replacement refrigerator and delivered it to John’s home. With the new appliance in place, CMHA was satisfied, and the inspection passed. Luis didn't stop there; he also helped with additional items John needed, further easing his transition into his new home. This successful resolution was a testament to the power of thinking outside the box and working together. By connecting community resources and collaborating effectively, Jamie, Erica, and Luis turned what seemed like an insurmountable problem into a smooth resolution.

Their combined efforts ensured that John’s new beginning was secure, highlighting the essence of community support: making the seemingly impossible manageable and providing peace of mind through collective action. In the world of social support, every challenge is an opportunity for teamwork.
